OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE.

THURSDAY MORNING, DEC. 14, 1865.

The Great Work Finished.

The end has come. The great battle between freedom and slavery is over. When slavery assailed the nation the declaration went forth that the monster must die. The blows it has received from the mailed hand of liberty, have accomplished its destruction. It had long been apparent that no attempts to revive slavery could be effectual; but this last finishing blow, directed against it by the combined strength of the nation, was still needed to give the country perfect assurance that the monstrous thing which has been the prolific source of all our ills, should trouble us no more.

An unofficial statement from Secretary Seward shows that the Constitutional Amendment abolishing slavery has been ratified by three-fourths of the States. The country, no doubt, will soon have official information of the great fact. Twenty-three States have already notified the State Department that their Legislatures have passed the Amendment. Certainly four, and perhaps five or six others have taken action on the matter within the last few days. Therefore, it is now certain that the work is done. In America no man to-day is a master; no man is a slave.

Providence kindly provides that every great wickedness, every heinous wrong, shall contain within itself the seeds of its own destruction. Thus slavery destroyed itself. Intrenched as it was behind motives of avarice and barriers of prejudice, and even behind constitutional guarantees and the forms of law, slavery, so long as it remained within its sphere, was wholly unassailable. But when it cast off its protective armor and resolved to measure its strength with liberty, it fell in the encounter. Just as every pernicious thing is the agent of its own destruction, so slavery has fallen, and that by the very means which it blindly took to assure its own preservation.

The country now begins a new, and a nobler life. It would erase from the pages of its history the record of its complicity with this great wrong. The past tells of oppression; of liberties despised and trampled upon; of years of contention; of fearful scenes of strife and blood. The future is full of promise. Every man is a freeman. Before the bar of justice all stand, or must stand as equals. Every person now has the privilege of working for his own improvement and advancement; the opportunity to labor for the development of the powers that are in him; the right to enjoy liberty and its fruits; the encouragement to entertain a hope of rising to a better condition. The great work of the age is achieved. Liberty is triumphant, and slavery, that "sum of all villainies," that insult of strife, that stain upon American civilization, is no more.

SPARE THE RIFLE-BACK.—We notice that many of the Copperhead papers, including the Confederate Democrat, are still waging war for slavery on the principle suggested three or four years ago by their doughty chieftain, Major General Pierre Gustave Toutant Beauregard. It will be remembered that this valorous officer, while in command of the forces opposed to General Grant in Tennessee and Alabama, issued a terrible order to the effect that the national soldiers should be known, and spoken of, throughout his military district as "Abolitionists." By the use of this potent word, intended as the epithet of inoffensive negroes, it was the purpose of imaginative General Beauregard and Party into the ranks of his opponents. But strange to say, his expectations were not realized. The "Democracy" however, have not yet lost their faith in the power of this dead epithet. The Confederate Democrat continues to use it against its opponents; now brandishing it as Hercules did his club in the conflict with the lion of Nemea, and now wielding it with quick dexterity as a fight weapon, in the hope of giving the adversary a mortal blow. This word, as Nasby truly says, is all the "capp'tle" the party has left. They still go forth like the zealots of old, proclaiming, "By this we conquer!" But let us ask deferentially, if it is well to look on it that word which once had the power to crush an opponent, or even to confuse and annihilate a great political party, has not now lost its magic influence? Hadn't the Confederate Democrat as well give up in disgust? The Constitutional Amendment is now ratified, and the Government is, to all intents and purposes, "Abolitionized." We are all "Abolitionists" now. We do hope the Democrat will be prevailed upon to discontinue the use of that most terrible and execrable word.

THE CAIN STRIKE.—In the Alabama Convention a long debate took place upon the proposition that as slavery had been destroyed, the Constitution should be amended by striking out all provisions relating to slaves and slavery. The debate was long and vehement. In reply to a speech of a fellow member, Mr. Elmore, of Montgomery, stated the case in the following forcible manner. We commend this brief paragraph to the consideration of the editor of the Statesville Democrat, since he seems to think that slavery is not yet abolished. This lucid argument by a fellow rebel, ought to convert him of the Democrat of his grievous error:

We accept one of three positions. Either we are a rebel people, or we were occupying the position of a Territory or of a State de facto and de jure. In either case, the decision will be against us. No matter whether the judges are all abolitionists or all Democrats, the decision must be against the people of this State. We did not occupy the relations to the Constitution that entitled us to the benefits of the Constitution, if we were a rebel people. If we were out of the Union, or had a right to secede, then we are a conquered people, and bound to accede to the terms of our conquerors. Secessionists, Abolitionists, Democrats, all will coincide in a conclusion that will settle the question against us forever. Is there entire delusion on the part of the gentlemen from Talladega. What is the use of argument upon this question? Why cannot we see it and meet it like men? Come up to this question as statesmen; see it as it is, and act upon it in good faith, accepting as facts matters we can neither deny nor ignore.

FROM THE CAPITAL.

Special Session of the Legislature.

(REPORTED EXPRESSLY FOR THE OREGONIAN.)

SALEM, Monday, Dec. 11, 1865.

SENATE.

Reports of standing and select committees were received.

Mr. Mitchell introduced a series of resolutions in relation to enforcing the United States revenue laws, condemning the violation of the same, commending the action of Collector Adams and protesting against the extending of Executive clemency to those who have been found guilty of smuggling, etc. Also, a resolution requesting the Secretary of State to furnish an abstract of all the the debts of our Provisional Government; another to appoint joint committees to examine the books and affairs of the offices of the State Treasurer and Adjutant General, which were adopted.

Mr. Mitchell introduced a bill for the publication at an early day, of 100 copies of the proceedings and laws of this session of the Assembly, in a separate volume, adopted.

The Senate insisted on its disagreement in the House amendments to the resolution ratifying the Constitutional amendment, for the reason that they are frivolous and not essential. Refused to appoint a committee of conference on the same.

Several bills which have been previously noticed were read.

Mr. Mitchell introduced a resolution requesting our delegation in Congress to ask that Portland be made a port of entry. Adopted.

The bill to transfer Klamath from Wasco to Jackson county, was read the third time and referred to the committee on counties.

A bill for the relief of Messrs. Fisher and Street of Baker county, was read the third time and passed.

Mr. Frazer presented a petition from twenty-five citizens of Polk county, praying for the repeal of the Sunday Law. Referred to the Judiciary committee.

Mr. Mitchell introduced a bill to amend the charter of the city of Portland.

Mr. Donnell moved to reconsider the vote by which the resolution in reference to making Portland a port of entry was adopted. Carried.

He was opposed to the resolution. Should their object be accomplished the whole State and Idaho Territory could be compelled to pay tribute to Portland. It would necessitate two custom houses, and increase the opportunities for smuggling. The Willamette river frequently becomes very low and boats have to be lightered in order to reach Portland.

Mr. Hinesdale did not exactly concur in the views expressed by the gentleman from Wasco, and he did not consider the objections to the measure sufficient to justify him in voting against it.

Mr. Mitchell replied to the arguments advanced by Mr. Donnell, that the proposition was not to establish a custom house at Portland, but simply to extend the limits of the collection district so as to include Portland, and establish bonded warehouses there. This would place a restriction on smuggling that does not exist now, for the bonded warehouses would enable the United States officers to more effectually prevent smuggling. If the people of Idaho, or the rest of Oregon want their goods landed at Astoria, they can do so. There is no trap in these resolutions, and the gentlemen from Wasco nor Dalles City need not be alarmed. They will work no injury in that direction.

Mr. Hinesdale thought that the establishment of bonded warehouses at Portland is a desirable desideratum, which can be understood and appreciated by those who are acquainted with mercantile affairs. It will favor commerce, prevent unnecessary delays and not incur any additional expense.

Mr. Pyle regretted that he must differ from his friend from Wasco, but he thought business would be greatly facilitated, and that merchants, and especially small traders east of the mountains who got their goods from Portland merchants, would be benefitted by the measure. Merchants who have the capital to import goods, can have them landed at Astoria and re-shipped direct to the Cascades if they wish. The motion was lost.

A message was received from the House announcing the concurrence of that body in the Senate resolution ratifying the Constitutional Amendment abolishing slavery.

Senate concurred in the series of Senate resolutions, as amended by the House relative to the death of President Lincoln.

Mr. Fraser, from special committee on school bill, reported several important amendments, which were adopted.

Adjourned.

AFTERNOON.

Preliminary action upon several bills was had.

Mr. Donnell offered a resolution to the effect that the resolution ratifying the Constitutional Amendment abolishing slavery, together with the names of the members voting for and against it be ordered engraved at the expense of the State, and that the Secretary of State be authorized to sell copies thereof at cost. Laid on the table.

Mr. Fraser introduced a joint resolution to propose an amendment to the Constitution of Oregon, so that any county, town or city should be enabled to become a shareholder in any corporation. Adopted.

The committee on military affairs reported an amendment to the military bill transferring that fund to the Penitentiary fund; adopted.

Adjourned.

HOUSE.

Prayer by the Rev. Dr. Boswell.

Mr. Hogue presented a petition from citizens of Grant county, signed by 145 persons, praying for the repeal of the Sunday Law. Referred to the Judiciary Committee.

PROPOSITIONS AND MOTIONS.

Mr. Perkins gave notice of a bill to regulate the practice of medicine, also to amend an act to prevent the spread of contagious disease among domestic animals.

Mr. Wakefield gave notice of a bill to amend the charter of the City of Portland, so as to give the City authority to lay out new streets and appropriate private property therefor.

Mr. Lawson gave notice of a bill to amend the present school law, so as to enable the clerks to enforce the collection of taxes.

Mr. Murphy gave notice of a bill relative to the government of the Penitentiary.

Mr. Gillett gave notice of a bill to amend a act regulating pilotage on the Columbia river.

Mr. Fay gave notice of a bill to amend an act to regulate the office of Public Printer; also, a bill amendatory of an act to repeal all statutes of a general nature with certain exceptions.

Mr. Powell gave notice of a bill to amend certain sections of the school law.

Mr. Hogue gave notice of a bill for the protection of mining interests in Grant county.

TAXING UNITED STATES BONDS.

The bill relating to the assessment and collection of taxes and providing for the taxing of the United States Bonds came up on its second reading.

Mr. Underwood offered an amendment exempting United States Bonds.

Mr. Lane opposed the amendment. He believed that a State had a perfect right to tax United States Bonds. This bill does not provide for taxing property of the United States, but only such bonds of the Nation as are the private property of individuals. He read from Hamilton to establish the correctness of his position. The only question about it is one of policy. He did not think it fair to discriminate in favor of this species of property. The last session of the Legislature passed a specific contract law which was in direct opposition to an act of Congress. He disclaimed having any designs to impair the credit of the United States. New Hampshire and Maine and other States have already passed such a law. Wealthy men would invest in these bonds to the exclusion of State bonds thus working an injustice to the State. If this amendment were adopted he would vote against the bill.

Mr. Perkins—I will ask the gentleman from Umatilla if he voted for the specific contract law.

Mr. Lane—I did.

Mr. Perkins—He tells us that he voted for this law, that it was in direct conflict with a law of Congress and yet he does not wish to impair the credit of the United States.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT FINALLY PASSED.

The debate was here interrupted by the arrival from the Senate of a message announcing the refusal of that body to appoint a committee of conference to adjust the disagreement between the two Houses as to the language used in the resolution ratifying the Constitutional Amendment.

After considerable discussion the House decide to recede from the proposed amendment and concurred with the Senate in the resolution, Messrs. Heall, Lane and Fay voting in the negative, Mr. Cox being absent. Thus the Constitutional Amendment abolishing slavery and involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime, throughout the United States was finally ratified by the Legislative Assembly of Oregon. The vote was taken at 11 o'clock A. M.

U. S. BONDS AGAIN.

The tax bill being now before the House, Mr. Lawson thought it was not within the jurisdiction of this body to make any such law. The law of Congress authorizing the issue of such bonds was enacted at a time when it was necessary for the Government to raise a vast amount of money with which to carry on the war for the preservation of the national existence. In order to encourage loans to the Government this act was passed. It is a part of the supreme law of the land and no State has a right to nullify it. He hoped this bill would be postponed as he had a memorial to Congress praying that, as the war is now at an end, and national credit is on a firm basis, the law exempting these bonds be repealed.

Mr. Fay did not think the memorial could be entertained. Congress had no power to repeal the law, as it would, be interfering with the vested rights of citizens which they had secured by purchasing these bonds with the understanding that they were to remain exempt from taxation.

Mr. Lawson contended that Congress had the power to repeal any law effecting property, provided proper compensation were made. This exemption was an inducement to the people to invest in government securities. It was one of those measures by which the Government succeeded in obtaining funds for carrying on the war. The success of our Government in relying upon its own resources during so great a struggle as that through which we have just passed has excited the wonder of all the nations of the old world. England and France have sent agents over here to find out the secret that enabled a country with no foreign credit to meet such vast expenditures without exhaustion. I do not think any State dare pass an act of this kind.

Mr. Lane—Now Hampshire has done so.

Mr. Lawson—I have not seen any authority for it. If she has, I hope this State will not do it. Look at the vast expense that has been incurred by Massachusetts during the war for the Union. Oregon has not expended over two hundred thousand dollars. Shall we now show our regard for the nation by taxing her bonds?

Mr. Lane—Is there any limit to the exempting power of Congress?

Mr. Lawson—I claim that in time of war the nation can use the property, liberty or lives of its citizens if necessary to its preservation.

A message from the Senate announced the concurrence of that body in the resolutions relative to Mr. Lincoln, as amended by the House.

Mr. Cartwright did not understand the question exactly as the gentleman from Yamhill did. He understood the question to be whether the United States bonds should be exempt from taxation, or should the States have the right to tax such of those bonds as are the private property of its citizens? There seemed to be a little injustice in the matter. State bonds are taxable, while United States bonds are exempt. This works an injustice to the former to some extent, which cannot be remedied, because of constitutional provisions. It is one of the necessary prerogatives of the Government to exempt its property.

Mr. Lane—The question is to tax the property of citizens. It is not contemplated to tax the property of the United States.

Mr. Cartwright—Is it not the purpose to tax United States bonds?

Mr. Lane—Those held by citizens.

Mr. Cartwright—According to the Constitution such taxes would have to go in to the Treasury of the United States so that this measure could not benefit the State at all.

Mr. Lane—Suppose I give you my note for a sum of money; is the note mine or yours?

Mr. Cartwright—It is mine, of course. I cannot see the relevancy of the question. Those bonds were issued in a case of emergency to save the Government—as much the State of Oregon as any other. If they had the right to issue the bonds, they had the right to make them valuable by exempting them from taxation. If the gentleman who favor this proposition were as anxious to be loyal—

Mr. Fay—I call the gentleman to order. I have listened to the slams of this gentleman, for which he has meanly apologized to me, long enough.

Mr. Speaker—The gentleman will please be courteous. The gentleman from Jackson should be guarded in his language.

Mr. Cartwright—I have said that if they would read—

Mr. Fay interrupted again, claiming that the Speaker had called him to order instead of the gentleman from Marion. Some confusion ensued.

Mr. Cartwright—I will try to be courteous. (A voice, "Try hard.") I want it distinctly understood that I never meanly apologized to the gentleman from Jackson. I do not consider this a measure of economy. It is in conflict with the law of Congress and I shall vote against it.

Mr. Fay arose to address the House.

Mr. Wakefield raised a point of order that the gentleman could not again speak on the question till other members who wished to had spoken. The point being decided well taken, he proceeded to state his views. Congress issued the bonds of the United States under a law expressly exempting them from taxation under the powers granted to Congress by that portion of the Constitution which binds the Legislatures of the several States by Congressional laws, and renders them incompetent to pass upon the validity of such laws, referring to the Supreme Court original jurisdiction in relation to such questions. I also wish to say, in reference to the arguments read from the Federalist, that they cannot be entertained by us as we are to be governed by the Constitution instead of by what Alexander Hamilton may have said or written.

Pending the debate the House adjourned till two o'clock, P. M.

AFTERNOON.

Mr. Fay favored the measure as an act of justice. The plea of military necessity had been too often made to cover violations of the Constitution. That necessity affords no pretext for the law. It is no more in conflict with the laws of Congress than the Specific Contract law was which was passed by the last Legislature. Gentlemen who voted for that law would be stultifying themselves if they did not vote for this measure.

Mr. Gillette had opposed the specific contract law, and he would oppose this on the same grounds. He was opposed to nullification.

Mr. McCartney thought those legal members ought to have read enough to know that there was a good cause for exemption. In 1816 Congress donated lands to the soldiers of 1812, and exempted them from taxation for five years. If lands can be exempted for five years, why may not bonds be for twenty years?

Mr. Underwood had voted for the specific contract law. That was not a parallel case to this. Greenbacks had been made a legal tender for debts. The specific contract law only allowed a man to waive his rights to use these legal tenders. This did not impair the credit of the United But the present bill does, and he will vote against it.

Considerable discussion followed, Messrs. Fay and Lane supporting and Messrs. Bowlby, Thornton and others, opposing the bill.

Mr. Parker moved the previous question, and the bill was indefinitely postponed.

THE POST OF ENTRY QUESTION.

A message was received from the Senate, transmitting a joint resolution requesting our representatives in Congress to ask Congress for an extension of the collection district so as to make Portland a port of entry, etc. It also condemned smuggling, and approved the official conduct of Collector Adams.

Mr. Wakefield moved to concur.

After considerable discussion, mostly between Messrs. Wakefield and Gillette, the resolution was referred to a select committee of three.

Several bills were read, a first or second time, and referred or ordered engrossed.

AMALGAMATION.

Mr. Lawson introduced a bill to prohibit the amalgamation of races, preventing under heavy penalties, persons of different races from intermarrying.

Mr. Lane offered the following resolution:

WHEREAS, by the hand of a foul assassin, it has pleased Almighty God in his infinite wisdom to take from our midst, Abraham Lincoln, the sixteenth President of the United States, and

WHEREAS, in Mr. Lincoln we recognize the duly elected Chief Magistrate of the land, therefore

Be it Resolved By the House of Representatives the Senate concurring, that we deeply deplore his untimely death, and in unmeasured terms express our condemnation of the base, unholy motives which actuated the assassin.

Several gentlemen stated objections that the ground had already been covered with a better series of resolutions, and therefore they would not vote for this.

Mr. Wakefield was called to the chair.

Mr. Masters said he was satisfied this resolution was fixed up for the purpose of creating a little capital for the Democratic party. To gratify them he would vote for the resolution.

Messrs. Gillette and Parker declined to vote for the resolution, because it recognized the Almighty as the cause of the assassination.

Mr. Lane stated that he had in view only the discharge of his duty. He could not vote for the first series because they were not correct as to facts.

Mr. Fay said this resolution was drawn up before the first series were voted upon.

The resolution was adopted.—Ayes 7.

Adjourned to seven o'clock to-night.

EVENING.

Mr. Fay gave notice of his intention to introduce a bill to repeal the Specific Contract Law.

BILLS READ.

A bill to amend the Charter of Albany City, prescribing the method of electing officers.

A bill to organize a Board of State Auditors.

Mr. Fay introduced a bill requiring the removal of negroes from the State.

Mr. Quick moved to reject.

Mr. Fay—This bill was drawn for the purpose of carrying out a provision of the Constitution of this State clearly stated. I will neither advocate the bill nor protest against it, but I call for the ayes and nays on this motion.

Motion was lost and the bill was referred to a select committee of three.

Mr. Shipley gave notice of a bill to change the State seal.

Several bills were read a first or second time, the introduction of which have been noticed.

Mr. Callison introduced a bill to legalize acts of J. B. Underwood, notary public, done under a misunderstanding of the law.

Mr. Hogue introduced a bill.

Mr. Bowlby gave notice of a bill to provide for payment of the members of the Legislature.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO DECEMBER 9.

The Cavalry to be Reorganized.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—The Herald's Washington dispatch says: General Pope, commanding the Cavalry Bureau, has introduced a proposition for a revision of the cavalry. The suggestion has received the approval of many officers. The plan contemplates that no soldier shall be permanently mounted until he has received a year's instruction and proved himself capable of properly taking care of a horse. That one-third of the force remain at recruiting regiments and shall be kept dismounted with only a sufficient number of horses for instruction in equestrianism, that the regiment shall rotate being dismounted; that after the regiment has been thoroughly instructed, mounted and sent to the field, it shall not receive any recruits until recalled to the place of rendezvous. By this means there will be no troops in the field but those most effective.

The Constitutional Amendment.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Official information has been received at the Department of State of the adoption of the Constitutional Amendment by the Legislatures of the States of Illinois, Rhode Island, Michigan, Massachusetts, Ohio, Missouri, Pennsylvania, Nevada, Connecticut, West Virginia, New Hampshire, Indiana, Vermont, Louisiana, Arkansas, Tennessee, South Carolina, Virginia—23 States. Telegraphic information has been received of the adoption of the amendment by North Carolina, Georgia and Alabama. No information of any kind has been received of its adoption by California or Oregon, Florida, Mississippi and Texas. Official information of its rejection by New Jersey, Delaware and Kentucky, has also been received.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—The Macon, Ga., Journal has a letter from Milledgeville saying, that provisional Governor Johnson has received orders from Washington to retain his position until further instructions. He is ordered to issue certificates of election to Georgia Congressmen.

Gov. Parsons of Alabama, also received despatches from Secretary Seward, on the 5th, congratulating him, the South and the country, in the President's name, on the adoption by Alabama of the Constitutional amendment, which completes the number of States required to make it the organic law of the land.

Reconstructed Loyalty.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Among the evidences Virginia has given of reconstructed loyalty, is that of Capt. William Steeples, Internal Revenue Tax Collector, who has been indicted for robbery by the Grand Jury of Prince Williams county, for seizing paoperty under cover of Federal cavalry, to pay the United States. The guerrilla Mosby is employed to prosecute the case.

Articles of Impeachment against the Fenian President.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Among the charges against Col. O'Mahoney, President of the Fenian Brotherhood, are, violating his oath in refusing to communicate with the Senate, refusing to enable the standing Finance Committee of the Senate to obtain the books and accounts; having placed in official position and salaried several persons who had been rejected by the Senate; having usurped the position of Agent of the Irish Republic after having been peremptorily rejected for that position by the Senate; having issued Bonds with his name on them, his agent having spent money by paying an immense sum for a mansion on Union Square, and having refused to pay over to the Secretary of War money that had been appropriated for war purposes by the Senate. It is also alleged that large sums of money have been used for speculation in gold. The charges against B. B. Killikan, Secretary of the Treasury, for perfidy and mal-feasance in office in refusing to pay money when ordered, and paying out large sums when there was no authority.

At a convention of delegates from the Fenian Circles, held on Saturday, an address was adopted endorsing O'Mahony as foremost among the noblest, truest and most earnest defenders of the cause, and repudiating the authority and condemning the action of the Fenian Senate.

Indemnity from England.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The State Department received by the last steamer from Europe important dispatches from our Minister to England. There is strong reason to believe that England will back down from her position on the pirate Alabama and at once agree to a quiet and agreeable adjustment of the question in dispute. The temper of the last dispatch from the State Department, which emanated from the President himself, was calculated to open the eyes of the English Government. A gentleman writing from England to a gentleman in this city by the last mail remarks that the Queen is our friend, and she will not allow Mr. Russell to take any position that will cause an estrangement between the Governments.

Reconstruction.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—In the House Blair introduced a resolution reinsbursing the loyal States for the money advanced and debts contracted for the preservation of the Union.

Elliott introduced a joint resolution which was referred to a select committee, defining the position of States recently in rebellion, and position of Congress in relation to them.

Schenck introduced a joint resolution declaring against the attempt to establish a Hierarchey in Mexico, and requesting the President to take such steps as will vindicate American policy and protect her honor and interests. Referred to committee on Foreign Affairs.

Jenkins introduced a bill re-establishing uniform system of bankruptcy code. Referred to special committee.

Vanhorn introduced a resolution instructing committee on Foreign Relations to inquire what measures and means have been taken on the part of the United States to restore to Mexico the free and unrestricted right to a republican Government. Laid over.

More Evidence of Virginia "Loyalty."

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—The Herald's Richmond correspondent says that the military police will be withdrawn from that city on the 15th, and civil police substituted.

The members of the Virginia Legislature seem to have decided that devotion to the rebel cause during the war, is to be the measure of merit, and have therefore determined to remove all Unionists holding State offices, and to put secessionists in their places. They have also adopted an amendment to the State Constitution which does away with all disabilities for holding office on account of participation in the late rebellion. It does not even require an oath of allegiance to the national Government.

George N. Saunders in Europe.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—The Herald's Washington dispatch says a letter received from London speaks of the arrival there of George Saunders, and of his visiting several important persons. He informed these persons he was sent by Jeff. Davis in 1862 to negotiate with Napoleon for the recognition of the Southern Confederacy, and was accorded two interviews with the Emperor, and that the invasion of Mexico was undertaken in pursuance of a plan then agreed upon, for which Napoleon insisted on being secured in the possession of Sonora, Sinaloa and Lower California. Saunders adds that he remonstrated and offered much greater inducements than Mexico presented, but the Emperor would not consent to take anything else.

Indemnity from England.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The State Department received by the last steamer from Europe important dispatches from our Minister to England. There is strong reason to believe that England will back down from her position on the pirate Alabama and at once agree to a quiet and agreeable adjustment of the question in dispute. The temper of the last dispatch from the State Department, which emanated from the President himself, was calculated to open the eyes of the English Government. A gentleman writing from England to a gentleman in this city by the last mail remarks that the Queen is our friend, and she will not allow Mr. Russell to take any position that will cause an estrangement between the Governments.

General Logan's Mission.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—A dispatch from Washington says: General Logan's instructions as minister to Mexico, are being prepared. He will accompany President Juarez wherever he goes.

The State Department is in receipt of important dispatches from Minister Adams.

Commodore Tatnall and General McLaws formerly of the rebel service, are living in Savannah, in destitute circumstances.

J. E. Murdock has so far recovered from his late illness as to be able to fulfill his engagements in the North.

Comments on the President's Message.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—About four hundred editorials on the President's Message, have been received at the White House, and about 90 per cent. of all heartily endorse the President's policy from the start, and recommend measures he proposes for the future.

Good Advice to the South.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The Savannah Herald of the 4th inst. has an important editorial, in which it advises the Georgia Legislature to so act as to have the effect of satisfying the North and to strengthen the President in his patriotic efforts to secure to the Southern States a restoration to their political rights, and if it is not done, positive evil will follow. It advises them to come square up to the requirements of President Johnson:

The French Position in Mexico.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—The Herald's special dispatch says the evacuation of Chihuahua by the French is fully confirmed by an official letter just received from the U. S. Consul at that city. This movement of the French is construed to mean that their Commander has abandoned the idea of holding the frontier in close subjection to Imperial Government until the army is increased by foreign enlistments. The Mexican Legation at Washington have also news to the same effect. Their sanguine interpretation of this is, that it is Maximillian's intention to send them back to France.

Naval Matters.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Acting Rear-Admiral J. S. Palmer, the new commander of the West India Squadron, reported for duty at the Brooklyn Navy Yard on Saturday. Admiral Palmer has designated the gunboat Rhode Island, Commander Murray, now at the Navy Yard, as his flag ship and will sail in her for the new district of operations in a few days.

Commander Corbitt has been detailed as fleet Captain of Admiral Palmer's Squadron and is chief of staff to this officer. Paymaster James H. Carpenter has reported as fleet paymaster of the West India Squadron.

California News.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 12.—Barney Otwell is on trial for murder committed in January last. The plea of insanity will be set up in his defense.

John Campbell, indicted for the murder of Anthony Hardgrave, will be tried to-morrow.

Since the organization of the Health Department, Nov. 8th, the police have served 480 notices and subpoenas for abating nuisances in different parts of the city.

Judge Wells to-day sentenced William Graves to pay a fine of $100 or be imprisoned three days in the county jail, for exhibiting a deadly weapon.

INTERESTING CORRESPONDENCE—MINISTER ADAMS TO EARL RUSSELL

LEGATION OF THE UNITED STATES
LONDON, September 18, 1865

My Lord: I have had the honor to receive your note of the 30th of last month, in reply to mine of the 20th of May last.

It gives me great satisfaction to be the medium of communicating to my Government the very friendly assurances of your lordship. I cannot entertain a doubt that they will be fully appreciated.

MUTUAL AMICABILITY

In respect to the reference which you have done me the honor to make to me, as having at no time entertained a doubt of the intentions of Her Majesty's dominions to maintain amicable relations with my Government during cholate severe struggle in my country, I am happy to believe that your lordship has not essentially misunderstood my sentiments. At the same time that I observe fully confirm such declarations as may have been made by me on the subject in the correspondence I have heretofore had the honor to hold with your lordship, I trust I may be permitted to claim, on behalf of my Government, the credit of intentions to the full as amicable. Indeed, without the presence of these elements on both sides I should have despaired of the possibility of the passage of the two nations in safety through the difficulties presented to them from within as well as from without.

But whilst I am prompt to respond to your lordship in the sense attributed to me I pray permission to guard myself against an inference that might by possibility be drawn from a portion of your language, prejudicial to my maintenance of the course which my Government had seen fit to take in regard to the events which have given rise to the present discussion. While doing the fullest justice to the intentions of Her Majesty's Ministers, I feel equally bound to preclude the supposition that I have ever been satisfied with the disclosure in which, on not many occasions they have contented themselves with carrying those intentions into practice. Inasmuch as the relations between nations are not less than between individuals, must depend upon the mode in which they fulfill their obligations towards each other rather than upon their motives, the questions which have grown out of the events of the late war appear to lose little of their gravity from any reciprocal disavowal, however complete, of ill will on the part of their respective Governments.

I am happy to concur with your lordship in the opinion that this appears to be a favorable moment for a calm and candid examination of these questions.

Were it not for this consideration I should abstain from further discussion, and content myself with simply transmitting to my Government the conclusion to which her Majesty's Ministers have arrived, as communicated to me toward the close of your lordship's note.

But, entertaining as I do a strong impression that in the matter now at issue is involved a question of international equity, based upon the grave principles of morals, of universal application, decision upon which is likely to have a very wide bearing upon the future relations of all civilized nations, and especially those most frequenting the high seas, I feel myself under the necessity of placing upon record the views that I hold by the Government which I have the honor to represent, at least to the extent to which the period of my service at this post has enabled me to do them but feeble justice.

In the note which I had the honor to address to your lordship on the 20th of May last, when recapitulating, in the form of propositions, the arguments which made the basis of certain declarations upon her Majesty's Government, I submitted, first of all, "that the act of recognition by her Majesty's Government of insurgents as belligerents on the high seas, before they had a single vessel afloat, was precipitate and unprecedented."

To this situation I understand your lordship now to reply, by candidly admitting the truth of at least one half of it. I refer to "the ground in justification that the insurrection which had at the unprecedented, powerfully contributed that the recognition was so likewise.

It only remains, then, to consider whether it was in point dispute, that no other act was ever done by one nation toward another in which it was in amity.

With regard to the other point which I took the liberty to use, the word "precipitate" I hesitate to call it a misconception on the part of your lordship on which you proceed to justify the act of recognition. You are pleased to observe that it "followed and did not precede" our declaration of the intended blockade of six or seven considerable ports, and the declaration of an intention on the part of the United States to issue letters of marque."

Now, I pray you, permit me briefly to notice that, if this be the whole case as to your lordship has given the length of the argument that Her Majesty's Government actually adopted this most grave proceeding without the evidence in possession of any fact whatever upon which to rest it. The statement simply that a declaration of intentions to act had been made by the respective parties preparing for a struggle.

Then I feel constrained respectfully to submit it to your lordship whether in the history of civilized nations there can be found a single instance in which a step of such importance was ever taken by the friendly Government in regard to another, upon a presumption of what was going to be done, and a surrender of certain acts not agitated but not performed. It would appear to be the part of wisdom, of statesmanship, in every case, which cannot fail deeply to affect the interests of a friendly nation, to postpone acting at least until something shall have actually been done to justify it. In this instance there was no certainty at the time when her Majesty's Government acted that either of those declarations of intention would be fulfilled. The result proves that one of them, in point of fact, was never executed. Neither was it of the possibility of belief that the other would have been equally left incomplete but for this very action of Her Majesty's Government, which precluded all chance of anything having been done to it. The actual blockade, then, so far as it being established, became simply an inevitable consequence of the policy which the relative state of the two Governments rendered necessary at the time, to make it such. I forbear to dwell upon this matter further.

As a still stronger proof of the precipitancy of that declaration, if any such be felt, I pray permission to refer to your published letter to Lord Lyons, written on the very day the proclamation was issued by the Government was made by yourself in the House of Commons, the 6th of May 1861. In that letter your lordship frankly admitted that, by reason of interruption of the communication between New York and Washington, you had not then any information of the precise measures actually taken down to that moment by either of the parties in the struggle "which appeared to have commenced."

Yet in spite of these circumstances, which deprived Her Majesty's Government of all accurate knowledge of facts, and notwithstanding that there was no apparent cause in any event that had occurred, urgently demanding an immediate decision, it was determined to adopt this step at this time—a step, which, however intended, could only just at the beginning of an undertaking to sap by violence the established authority of a friendly power, fail to have an influence injurious to the maintenance of that authority and favorable to its overthrow. Considering the nature of the friendly intentions which your lordship is pleased to take credit for, and in which I fully believe, the very best excuse which I can imagine for this proceeding is that it was precipitate. I should be sorry to be led to the natural inference that would follow my admitting it to have been done with deliberate premeditation. I therefore must respectfully persist, notwithstanding your lordship's reluctance, in the opinion that I have not failed to give it the epithet which most fittingly belongs to it.

But your Lordship in your note is pleased to justify this extraordinary unprecedented and precipitate step on another ground. This is the "magnitude" of the appearance of the insurrection. This certainly corresponds with my impression of the reasoning which you assigned to me in the first conversation which I had the honor to hold with you after my arrival in this country, the 18th of May, 1861. This view is now amplified in the form of the propositions with which your lordship has now favored me.

That the history of modern nations affords no example of insurrection against a Central Government so widely extended, so immediate in its operations so well and so long prepared, so soon and so completely furnished with the machinery of civil Government, a national representation generals and officers of high military reputation, armies fully equipped and fortifications recently in possession of the established Government.

That intelligence reached Her Majesty's Government in the Spring of 1861 that seven combined States had declared in favor of this insurrection that three more States, including the great and powerful State of Virginia were preparing to join them, that these States commanded upwards of three thousand miles of sea coast, that they comprised more than five million of people exclusive of the negro slaves, that the President of the insurgent Government had proclaimed his intention of issuing letters of marque and reprisal that the President of the United States on the other hand had proclaimed his intention to establish a blockade of all the ports of the Southern States and that in these circumstances the commander of Her Majesty's naval forces on the North American station earnestly solicited instructions for his guidance.

In respect to this may I be permitted to beg your attention to the fact that with perhaps the exception of the great number of people engaged I do not think myself able to furnish an example of an insurrection in every particular corresponding to your lordship's which has occurred within the last century. I do not doubt that my allusion will at once be understood by your lordship without another word.

Yet, notwithstanding all the points of identity in that case I cannot find that Her Majesty's Government was met at the outset, in 1774, with any announcement by a foreign Power in amity with Great Britain of a necessity immediately to recognize the insurgents as a belligerent power because of the magnitude of the struggle, or for any other cause. Neither is there the smallest ground for believing that it would have tolerated the proceeding for one moment if it had been.

Her Majesty's Government at once resorted without scruple or hesitation to every right or lawfully exercised by a belligerent in a war with a strong power and was met with a degree of resistance more effective and enduring than any manifested in the late struggle. The resistance too, was carried out on the ocean, where alone the interests of distant neutral States are liable to be seriously affected by the domestic strife of any nation in a manner far more extensive than the late insurgents by their unaided efforts could ever have attempted. Not a length of time elapsed before any foreign Power, however much inclined, ventured to find in this state of things any reason for considering the people waging such a war as a belligerent Power. It furthermore is certain, that if at any time the smallest indication of leaning that way manifested itself in any of the commercial Powers it was immediately noted by the British Government for remonstrance and reclamation.

Your lordship has been pleased to review the conduct of France in this emergency, and endeavor to set aside the parallel which I attempted in my note, on the ground that that country was animated by a policy decidedly hostile to Great Britain. The fact is doubtless so. But it so happens that this only bears with the more force in my favor in the present argument. Had France being inclined to injure Great Britain, decided to recognize the insurgents as a belligerent it would, according to the doctrine now avowed by Her Majesty's Government, have been doing no more than was absolutely necessary and altogether justifiable. Why did it not take this step at once? Unhappily for the example, Great Britain at the outset insisted upon considering her as a friendly Power, and called upon her solemnly to desist from any attempt whatever to recognize the pretense of the insurgent force. In proof of this I beg permission to quote a brief extract from a historical writer, well known to have drawn his state ments from official sources. Adolphus says that in April, 1775 that is, one year after the outbreak of the insurrection.

"The friendly disposition of the French Government towards Great Britain has been unequivocally demonstrated and the expectation that succor would be afforded to the Americans was suppressed by an edict prohibiting all intercourse with them."

It thus appears that no idea was at that early period entertained by the British authorities of any unfriendly disposition on the part of France. So far from being inclined, as your lordship supposes it might have been to give aid to the insurrection, which since 1774 had been developing its great proportions, by any recognition of it as a belligerent, the French sovereign frankly responded to an appeal made by Great Britain by interdicting his people from all relations whatever with the Americans. In other words, the example shows that on both sides there was not the remotest conception that a recognition of insurgents as a belligerent, immediately upon the breaking out of the insurrection could be considered as a just cause for the part of a friendly power.

This brings me to the point at which I am compelled to question the soundness of the proposition upon which your lordship appears to proceed, to wit, that the action of foreign countries in reference to an insurrection that may take place against the established Government of a friendly power is to be regulated by a consideration of the magnitude of the numbers that are engaged in the struggle. To my mind there is a difficulty in finding a foundation in sound principles for drawing such a distinction. If I may be permitted to express my own impression, it is that this action of foreign Governments, if premised to be real friendly is rather to be based upon something like the same rule which they representing large or small communities, would desire to be applied to themselves when in similar circumstances. The true criterion by which to be guided appears to be rather framed by patient examination of the probabilities of the issue. This can rarely be seen at the outset. It is not dependent upon the mere accident of numbers. The force which lately overturned the Government of Naples did not seem requisite to the object, yet it was accomplished, nevertheless, and foreign nations, consequently recognized the result.

On the other hand, the numerical force enlisted in the insurrection in the United States was large, but time has shown that there never was a moment whilst it lasted that it had a chance of success against the resolute perseverance of a far stronger antagonist. For a foreign nation to have recognized in advance the huddle of followers under the lead of General Garibaldi as a belligerent Power would have everywhere been regarded as a violation of comity to the sovereign then ruling at Naples, and interfering to uphold an otherwise desperate undertaking. Yet the new kingdom of Italy was the offspring of this enterprise. On the other hand, the attempt in advance to assume the unlikelihood that the legitimate authorities in the United States would sustain themselves purely because of the magnitude of the forces levied against them, and to make this reason a basis for an "unprecedented and precipitate" act, inventing them with the rights of a belligerent all over the world has ended only in furnishing a historical precedent against the authority of which I cannot but feel it to be for the peace and harmony of civilized nations for all later times most earnestly to protest.

If I am correct in this view, then, the conclusion which I find true international comity to prompt is this. Whenever an insurrection against the established Government of a country takes place, the duty of Governments under obligations to maintain peace and friendship with it appears to be at first to abstain carefully from any step that may have the smallest influence in affecting the result. Whenever facts occur of which it is necessary to take notice, either by use they involve a necessity of protecting personal interests at home or avoiding an implication in the struggle, then it appears to be just and right to provide for the emergency by specific measures precisely to the extent that they may be required, but no farther. It is, then, facts alone, and not appearances or presumptions, that justify action. But even those are not to be dealt with farther than the occasion demands, a rigid neutrality in whatever may be done is of course understood. If, after the lapse of a reasonable period, there be little prospect of a termination of the struggle, especially of this be carried on upon the ocean a recognition of the parties as belligerents appears to be justifiable, and at that time, so far as I can see certain, such a step has never in fact, been objected to. Lastly, when the evidence sustains a belief that the established Government has utterly lost the power of control over the resistance made without probability of recovery, it is competent for any friendly Government to recognize the insurgent force as an independent Power without giving it just cause for offense.

Such appears to me to have been the course rigidly adhered to by the Government which I have the honor to represent in the long struggle which took place between Spain and her colonies in South America. On which side of it the sympathies of the people were cannot admit of a doubt. The respective duties which your lordship has been kind enough to search out and record in your note fully establish the fact how carefully all precipitation was avoided in judging of the issue in regard to the mother country. I may perhaps, be permitted to observe that the action of Her Majesty's Government in the same cases furnishes even stronger precedents to confirm the soundness of my views. Its recognition of belligerency in those instances cannot be considered as suitably described by either term unprecedented or precipitate.

I have dwelt at some length upon the original point of difference between the two countries, as it has ever seemed to me the fruitful parent of all the subsequent difficulties. The issue of a very large feeling which I cannot deny now to prevail among my countrymen. How much stress have I endeavored to put upon my Government and how ably Seward to whom your lordship has kindly paid so grateful a compliment has heretofore applied what you justly term his remarkable power of mind to it I am sure I need not remind you. In my note of the 20th of May I endeavored to arrange in a logical sequence of distinct propositions the effect which followed this as the first step, and which have led to the reclamations I have been constrained by my instructions to present. I do not propose at this time to dwell upon them further. I will only pray you to excuse the earnestness with which I venture to give expression to my views under the plea of my belief that upon a correct decision in this controversy may depend the security which the commerce of belligerents will hereafter enjoy on the high seas against the hazard of being swept from them through the acts of nations professing to be neutral, and bound to be friendly.

THE STANDARD AMERICAN BILLIARD TABLES!

AND COMBINATION CUSHIONS

MESSRS. PHELAN & COLLENDER

WOULD RESPECTFULLY CALL THE ATTENTION of Proprietors and all others wishing Billiard Tables to the great superiority of their tables, manufactured exclusively by their establishment.

All Billiard Tables manufactured by us will be used at the Grand Championship Billiard Tournament to be held in this city in November next, which will be the first and only public test of the merits of Billiard Tables ever made in this country.

The Billiard Tables have received the unqualified approval of the best players and amateurs of billiards wherever they have been introduced, and are pronounced by them to be the most perfect Billiard Tables ever made.

Since our last publication we have made many improvements in Billiard Tables, and guarantee them to be the most perfect Billiard Tables in the United States. We have also lately obtained a Patent from the French Government for our improvement in Billiard Cushions.

We would say, in the construction of our tables, a variety of cue bases specially made for the purpose by means of which we are enabled to insure a complete and permanent level in any inequality to be found in Billiard manufacture.

Having a long experience and thorough knowledge of all the requisites of a Billiard table and constantly in hand a large stock of the best materials to select from, we are prepared to furnish every Billiard Table in the most complete manner, and can insure the entire satisfaction of every purchaser.

The amount of care in Billiard Player M. Prager has published the following testimonial:

NEW YORK, 2d August 1865

On the eve of leaving the United States I am happy to have had the opportunity of Billiards that after a term of eleven months through the principal cities, I have been enabled to give a satisfactory answer of the superiority of the Billiard Tables manufactured by Phelan & Collender. The system of manufacturing is superior that I am happy to introduce their style of cushion into France. They have united their manufacture of American Billiard Tables, a cloth of the finest Tables of remarkable elasticity and beauty. For these reasons I am happy to make this declaration.

M. PRAGER.

BERGER, CLAUDIUS,
Pupil of Billiards, Paris.

Parties ordering from us will find our prices as low as good work can possibly be made for. We sell first class articles at fair prices, and will not make an inferior article at any price.

Our new Illustrated Circular will be issued about the 1st of January, and Price List sent by mail. The Billiard Circular, a Journal published in the interest of Billiards and containing details of full tournaments, will be sent on receipt of Billiard news, and everything of interest to gentlemen of Billiards sent from us on application.
